This book is at first sight a selection of reviews spanning many years, including some fundamental well-known works and some rare gems; as such, it is useful and interesting in itself, not least because the selection of titles under review follows rigorous criteria. But this collection is also much more than its description implies, for the objective and informative aspect of every chapter is inseparable from an intimate aspect, a recurrent invitation to tread the Path within every path. It is written from first-hand acquaintance and from study, but also from passion and certainty. The concrete and diverse examples shed light on the key to solve the religious puzzle of our times: that is, an integral framework that allows both for religious diversity and for religious unity. The voices of tradition are all, and have to be, different, and yet they are of a compelling unanimity on the essentials. Samuel Bendeck Sotillos draws our attention generously to these voices and this One Voice.

Samuel Bendeck Sotillos is a practicing psychotherapist who has worked for years in the field of mental health and social services, focusing on the interface between spirituality and psychology. His works include Psychology Without Spirit: The Freudian Quandary, and Behaviorism: The Quandary of a Psychology without a Soul. He edited the issue on Psychology and the Perennial Philosophy for Studies in Comparative Religion, and his articles have appeared in numerous journals including Sacred Web, Sophia, Parabola, Resurgence, and the Temenos Academy Review.
