Wittgenstein and Phenomenology

This volume of new essays explores the relationship between the thought of Wittgenstein and the key figures of phenomenology: Husserl, Heidegger, Levinas, Merleau-Ponty and Sartre. It is the first book to provide an overview of how Wittgenstein's philosophy in its different phases, including his own so-called phenomenological phase, relates to the variety of phenomenological approaches developed in continental Europe. In so doing, the volume seeks to throw light on both sides of the comparison, and to clarify more broadly the relations between analytic and phenomenological philosophy. However, rather than treating the interpretation of either phenomenological philosophy or Wittgenstein as an already settled issue, several chapters in the volume examine and question received views regarding them, and develop alternatives to such views. Wittgenstein and Phenomenology will be of interest to scholars working in philosophical methodology and metaphilosophy, the philosophy of mind, philosophy of language and logic, and ethics.

Oskari Kuusela is Senior Lecturer in Philosophy at the University of East Anglia. He is the author of The Struggle against Dogmatism: Wittgenstein and the Concept of Philosophy (Harvard UP, 2008), Key Terms in Ethics (Continuum/Bloomsbury, 2010) and Wittgenstein on Logic as the Method of Philosophy: Re-examining the Roots and Development of Analytic Philosophy (Oxford UP, forthcoming). He is the co-editor of Wittgenstein and His Interpreters (Blackwell-Wiley, 2007, paperback 2013), The Oxford Handbook of Wittgenstein (Oxford UP, 2011, paperback 2014) and Ethics in the Wake of Wittgenstein (Routledge, forthcoming).

Mihai Ometiță is a Postdoctoral Fellow of the New Europe College (Bucharest), and is currently researching Wittgenstein's and Merleau-Ponty's accounts of intentional action in light of cinematographic experience. He contributed to the volume Colours in the Development of Wittgenstein's Philosophy (Palgrave Macmillan, 2017). He wrote a PhD thesis on the problem of phenomenology in middle Wittgenstein's manuscripts (University of East Anglia, 2015) and a research MA thesis on the Heidegger-Cassirer debate on Kant's ethics (University of Groningen, 2011).

Timur Uçan is Teaching Assistant in Philosophy at University Bordeaux Montaigne, and Teacher in Philosophy at Jean Monnet High School in Cognac. He is Member of the Laboratory of Sciences, Philosophy and Humanities (EA 4574, Bordeaux). He wrote a PhD thesis on issues of solipsism in the early works of Sartre and Wittgenstein in a co-supervisory agreement between the University of East Anglia and the University Bordeaux Montaigne.

Avner Baz is Associate Professor of Philosophy at Tufts University. In recent years he has mostly focused on questions concerning philosophical method and perception as well as arguing for the relevance of the work of Wittgenstein, Austin, and Merleau-Ponty for contemporary analytic philosophy. He is the author of When Words Are Called For (Harvard UP, 2012) and The Crisis of Method in Contemporary Analytic Philosophy (Oxford UP, 2017).

Daniel Dwyer is Associate Professor of Philosophy at Xavier University in Cincinnati. He has published numerous articles on Husserl, Wittgenstein, epistemology, and phenomenology of perception in journals such as Husserl Studies and Continental Philosophy Review. He is currently writing a manuscript on the philosophy of perception in Plato, Aristotle, and classical phenomenology.

Mauro L. Engelmann is Professor of Philosophy at UFMG (Federal University of Minas Gerais) and researcher at CNPq (National Research Council, Brazil). Currently, he also collaborates with the Institute of Advanced Transdisciplinary Studies (IEAT) at UFMG. He is the author of Wittgenstein's Philosophical Development: Phenomenology, Grammar, Method, and the Anthropological View (Palgrave Macmillan, 2013) and several papers on Wittgenstein and the history of analytic philosophy.

Oskari Kuusela is Senior Lecturer in Philosophy at the University of East Anglia. He is the author of The Struggle against Dogmatism: Wittgenstein and the Concept of Philosophy (Harvard UP, 2008), Key Terms in Ethics (Continuum/Bloomsbury, 2010) and Wittgenstein on Logic as the Method of Philosophy: Re-examining the Roots and Development of Analytic Philosophy (Oxford UP, forthcoming). He is the coeditor of Wittgenstein and His Interpreters (Blackwell-Wiley, 2007, paperback 2013), The Oxford Handbook of Wittgenstein (Oxford UP, 2011, paperback 2014) and Ethics in the Wake of Wittgenstein (Routledge, forthcoming).

Denis McManus is Professor of Philosophy at the University of Southampton. He is the author of The Enchantment of Words: Wittgenstein's Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus and Heidegger and the Measure of Truth (both published by Oxford University Press), and the editor of Wittgenstein and Scepticism and Heidegger, Authenticity and the Self: Themes from Division Two of Being and Time (both published by Routledge).

Katherine J. Morris is a Fellow in Philosophy at Mansfield College, Oxford University, UK. Her books include Descartes' Dualism (with Gordon Baker, Routledge, 1996), Sartre (Blackwell Great Minds series, 2008), and Starting with Merleau-Ponty (Continuum, 2012). She edited a collection of Gordon Baker's later articles on Wittgenstein, Wittgenstein's Method: Neglected Aspects (Blackwell, 2004), and she has published widely on Descartes, Wittgenstein, Sartre and Merleau-Ponty.

Jean-Philippe Narboux is currently a Fellow at the Institute for Advanced Study of Berlin (2017–2018). He is Associate Professor of Philosophy at University Bordeaux Montaigne, and Honorary Fellow of the Institut Universitaire de France. He recently edited The Legacy of Thompson Clarke (Brill Publishing, 2014) and co-edited (with J.-M. Mouillie) Sartre. L'être et le néant. Nouvelles Lectures (Les Belles Lettres, 2015) and (with E. Bermon) Finding One's Way Through Wittgenstein's Philosophical Investigations: New Essays on §§1–88 (Springer, 2017). He is the author of a number of articles comparing Wittgenstein with Husserl or Heidegger.

Mihai Ometiță is a Postdoctoral Fellow of the New Europe College (Bucharest), and is currently researching Wittgenstein's and Merleau-Ponty's accounts of intentional action in light of cinematographic experience. He contributed to the volume Colours in the Development of Wittgenstein's Philosophy (Palgrave Macmillan, 2017). He wrote a PhD thesis on the problem of phenomenology in middle Wittgenstein's manuscripts (University of East Anglia, 2015) and a research MA thesis on the Heidegger-Cassirer debate on Kant's ethics (University of Groningen, 2011).

Rupert Read is Reader in Philosophy at the University of East Anglia. He studied principally at Oxford and Rutgers, and was Cora Diamond's student at Princeton. His books include Kuhn (Polity, 2002), Philosophy for Life (Continuum, 2007), There Is No Such Thing as a Social Science (Ashgate, 2008) and Wittgenstein among the Sciences (Ashgate, 2012). He is perhaps best-known in philosophy for having brought together (along with Alice Crary) the school around Cora Diamond and James Conant, in The New Wittgenstein (Routledge, 2000). He is now working on a book giving a 'liberatory' reading of the Philosophical Investigations.

Anne-Marie Søndergaard Christensen is Associate Professor of Practical Philosophy at the University of Southern Denmark. She mainly works on Wittgensteinian ethics, virtue ethics and professional ethics, and she is currently working on a monograph on the role and status of ethical theory in moral philosophy and moral life. She has published a monograph on virtue ethics as well as a number of articles on the implication of Wittgenstein's work for ethics.

Timur Uçan is teaching assistant in philosophy at Bordeaux Montaigne University, and teacher in philosophy at Jean Monnet High school in Cognac. He received his PhD from the University of East Anglia in co-supervision with the University of Bordeaux (thesis title: The Issue of Solipsism in the Early Works of Sartre and Wittgenstein). He contributed to the volume Sartre. L'Être et le néant. Nouvelles lectures (Les Belles Lettres, 2015).
