Procreation Evolution of Living Organisms on Earth

Kong Derick Njikeh, MD. Email: kongderick@yahoo.com

I believe that living organisms on the planet earth and the conditions for their procreation and growth were created (designed) by a super being (intelligent designer), and not by the process of spontaneous occurrence. I believe that there are components which makeup each living organism for its growth and evolution on the planet earth.

A Plant is made-up of a component which is; a Body component, comprising of a DNA (genetic makeup) which determines its growth and evolution pattern based on the conditions designed by the super being.

An Animal is made-up of two components which are; a Body component, comprising of a DNA (genetic makeup) which determines its growth and evolution pattern based on the conditions designed by the super being and a Submind (Soul) component, which coordinates the Body and gives the instinct nature of an animal leading to a state of subconsciousness in an animal.

A Human is made-up of three components which are; a Body component, comprising of a DNA (genetic makeup) which determines its growth and evolution pattern based on the conditions designed by the super being, the Submind (Soul) component, which coordinates the body and gives the instinct nature of a human leading to the state of subconsciousness in a human and the Mind (Spirit) component, which controls the Submind and gives the imaginative nature of human leading to a state of consciousness in human.

For growth and evolution of living organisms on the planet earth, the components which makeup living organisms are introduced in a stage manner during the process of procreation. The Body component is introduced in a plant, animal and human during fertilization, which grows and evolves due to the conditions put in place by the super being. The Submind (Soul) component is introduced in animal and human during the beginning of embryogenesis and the Mind (Spirit) is introduced in human during the beginning of foetogenesis.

In human during the period of conception, the Body period takes 7 days, the Body and Submind period take 7 weeks and the Body, Submind and Mind period take 7 months giving a total of 9 months of conception period. This notion of 7 days, 7 weeks and 7 months can be known as the rule of 7s in human procreation.

For further understanding on the different components which makeup human, read my article titled "Derician Trialism: the Concept of Human Composition into the Mind, Submind and Body Substances/Components".
